

MONSTER IN MANHATTAN!

A Sick Sad World EXCLUSIVE!!

“The Ladybird Room” A quiet little casino tucked into an unassuming corner of the city that never sleeps.

A casino? In Manhattan? Why yes my friends. The city is home to many such establishments. They operate on the fringes. Known only to those who will not tell of their secret locations. Open for a few hours each night. These gathering places for those with tastes that run outside of the law must forever be on the move.

Good friends, last night a group of art students from The Cooper Union went out to enjoy a night on the town at “The Ladybird Room”. They knew there might be some danger, but could not possibly have imagined what horror they would meet that evening!

As the friends played a few hands of poker, they heard a barrage of blows against the door! In moments it was ripped open, revealing what words cannot describe!

I know this image may startle you, but I assure you that it was drawn by one of those very students. An eye witness to the evening’s events. The wolf is out there my friends, and he is on the hunt.
